PREFACE.

1326577

Mirfield is a small manufacturing town, situated about three miles south-west of Dewsbury, and nearly five miles north-east of Huddersfield. In 1811 the population was 4,315.

The first volume of the Parish Registers, of which a portion is here printed, is handsomely bound in calf and contains 246 parchment leaves, measuring $12\frac{1}{2}$ by $7\frac{1}{2}$ inches. Down to 1754 the entries are mixed, but from that date to 1776, baptisms and burials only are given, separated, year by year, the marriages being entered in the regulation volume.

The register has been kept very carefully throughout and is in excellent condition with few exceptions. The entries continue without interruption during the Civil War period.

The Society is indebted to the Vicar of Mirfield, the Rev. C. A. Boden, M.A., and to the late Mr. E. T. Ingham, of Blake Hall, Mirfield, the patron of the living, for kind permission to transcribe and publish the registers.
